

What We've Built for Pasquini Engineering

Client Walkthrough Script • TD Creatives

Talking script — speak naturally off these points. Each section covers what it is in plain terms and, more importantly, what it does for them.

Opening

"I want to walk you through everything I've been building for Pasquini, because it's more than just a new website. What we've put together is a system that works for you around the clock — it captures every lead that comes in, sorts out the serious ones, follows up automatically, asks happy customers for reviews, and even answers the phone when you can't. The goal is simple: you stop losing business to missed calls and slow follow-up, and you spend your time on the projects that are actually worth your time. Let me show you the pieces."

1. The New Website

"First, the foundation — a brand-new, fully functional website. This isn't just a nicer-looking page. It's built to actually bring you work: it's fast, it works on phones, it shows up better in search, and every part of it is designed to turn a visitor into a lead instead of just letting them read and leave."

What it does for you: It's your best salesperson, working 24/7. Someone finds you at 9 at night, the site is already doing the job of explaining what you do and getting their information in front of you — instead of them clicking away to the next engineer.

2. The Chat Agent — Qualifying Your Leads

"Built into the site is a Chat Agent. When someone lands on your page, it can answer their questions and, more importantly, ask them the right ones — what kind of project, where it is, what the timeline looks like, what they actually need. Here's the part that matters: it doesn't just collect that info, it sorts it. It figures out whether this is a strong lead worth your attention, whether it needs a little more information, or whether it's not really a fit — and organizes all of that for you automatically."

What it does for you: You stop wasting time on tire-kickers and jobs outside your wheelhouse, and you never miss the good ones. By the time a lead reaches you, it's already been asked the questions you'd ask, and you can see at a glance which ones are ready for a conversation. It's like having someone screen every inquiry before it hits your desk — day or night.

3. Automatic Follow-Up Email

"When a new lead comes in, they get a professional follow-up email automatically — right away, without you or anyone on your team having to remember to do it."

What it does for you: Speed is everything with leads. The business that responds first usually wins the job. This makes sure Pasquini is always the fast responder — even if the inquiry comes in on a weekend or while you're out on a site. The lead hears back immediately, feels taken care of, and you look buttoned-up and professional every single time.

4. Automatic Review Request

“After a job wraps up, the system automatically reaches out to that customer and asks them for a review.”

What it does for you: Reviews are what win you the next client — they're the thing a stranger looks at before they decide to trust you. But asking for them is the thing everybody forgets to do when they're busy. This takes it off your plate entirely. Every happy customer gets asked, at the right moment, so your reputation keeps building on its own.

5. The Call Agent — During and After Hours

“We've set up a Call Agent that can handle calls both during work hours and after you've closed for the day. During the day, it means a call never goes unanswered when your team is heads-down or on another line. After hours, it means the phone still gets picked up, the caller still gets their questions handled, and their information still gets captured — instead of going to voicemail that half of people never leave.”

What it does for you: Every missed call is potentially a missed job — and a caller who doesn't get an answer usually just calls the next engineer. This makes sure Pasquini answers, every time, day or night. You capture business you were quietly losing before without even knowing it.

Closing — Tie It Together

“So step back and look at the whole thing. A website that brings people in. A Chat Agent that qualifies them. Automatic follow-up so no one falls through the cracks. Automatic review requests so your reputation keeps growing. And a Call Agent so the phone is always answered. It all works together, and it all works whether you're in the office, out on a job, or asleep. What it really buys you is this: fewer lost leads, less busywork for you and your team, and more of the right projects coming through the door. You focus on the engineering — the system handles catching and following up with the business.”

Quick tips for delivering this

- Lead with the benefit, not the technology — they care about “more jobs, less missed business,” not how it's wired together.
- Pause after each section and let them react — it doubles as a chance for them to tell you what excites them most.

- If they ask “is this all live right now?”, be straight about what’s fully switched on versus what’s in final setup, so expectations stay clean.
